AN ENLIGHTENING, ENRICHING EXPERIENCE

“Treat others with respect and dignity.”

It's a principle that applies in school, in social groups, in business and across every kind of organization. You can help bring that principle to life for your group with a presentation from Helping Paws, the people behind the dogs in the blue coats.

Helping Paws maintains an active educational program for people to learn about service dogs and how they enhance the lives of persons with disabilities.

Our volunteers and staff travel to service organizations, schools, clubs, social groups, corporations and other gatherings to conduct special presentations throughout the year, which can include:

- Showing a short video of a working team
- Demonstrations of service dog skills in-training
- Interactive demonstration (audience/dog)
- Handouts appropriate to age level of audience
